

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A review service system capable of supplying a review service desired by a general practitioner such that the service fits desired conditions. Supplier information such as a location and an amount of spare time concerning each of a plurality of medical specialists is stored in a database in advance. The medical specialists are suppliers capable of supplying review services. A management center comprises: a supplier information acquire unit for acquiring supplier information; a customer information acquire unit for acquiring customer information concerning the review service desired by the general practitioner as the customer; and a matching unit for listing the medical specialists capable of supplying the review service that fits the conditions desired by the general practitioner from the database, deciding a medical specialist who best fits desired conditions, and allowing the customer and the supplier to correspond with each other, based on the supplier information and the customer information.

10
11
12
13
14
15